death-bed confession, so to speak, before a Congressional investigating committee, and admitted that the iron and steel industry of this country was no longer an infant industry and in need of the protective tariff it has so long ealoyed. These two great Republicans are a living monument to Republican government," he said.

"Senator Cummings, of Jowa, whom i love and think is as good as a Republican can he, and I admit that is not saying much in his favor, in a recent speech, stated that he was afraid of the election of a Democratic Senata. For all the good that is coming of his fawrs I add that there is a certainty of a Democratic Senata. Potential of the past three Republican administrations was made by Senator Pomerens. Hardly a single preminent Republican administrations was spired the isjan of his cutting surcasm and eaged him on by greating his remarks by deafening apseuse. Indeed, enthus sharm reached such a pitch that it was necessary for the band stationed in the District since the celebration of the second election of Grover Cleveland, seemed to delight in his biting acrosm and eaged him on by greating his remarks by deafening appause. Indeed, enthus sharm reached such a pitch that it was necessary for the band stationed in the balcony to play the "Star Spangied Banner," to drown the appause in order that Senator Pomerene might continue. Monday night in Milwaukee. I want it clearly understood that my deepest sympathies go out to that distinguished American who was so unfortunately assaulted. I am giad that he was broad enough afterward to announce that he hoped the great issues of the day would not be settled by sentiment in the coming election but by their merits. His most able lieutenant, the owner of a Washington paper, a few days ago, declared: Turn the light on the campaign expenses, but for God's sake don't tell where the money comes from. I regret that he has not the same broad mind of his champion. In an article printed last Monday is a list of Roosevelt's achievements, and above it is this head: The reasons why Col. Roosevelt did not have time to revise the tariff."

"I ask if he did not have time to do so during the seven years he was President, how long would be have to be President before he could find time to make a start? I cannot help but think the tariff bills formulated during the last eleven years of Republican administration by an Aldrich and a Payne were conceived in inequity and seeped in sin. If you men have not the sense to vote against them on November & stay away from the polls and let your wives vote."

The present great political problems were discussed by Senator Rayner of Maryland, Representative Carlin of Virginia, and Representative Page of North Carolina.

A resolution introduced by William McK. Clayton, who presided, indorsing Wilson and Marshall as the Democratic candidates was unanimously adopted.

J. Fred Kelley and his sturdy fellows of the Young Mon's Democratic Club, led by Pistorio's band, headed the parade, which formed at the Old Masonic Tumple and marched through the principal streets before poles to the armory to attend the raily. Practically all of the Democratic club, led by Pistorio's band, headed the parade.
